

VMWorld 2008 - Content Catalog

So, the content catalog has been released.

But I only see Labs and Panels and none of them have times.

Anyone know when I can start building my schedule? Maybe I'm early, but I could have sworn I started my schedule already by this time last year.

Hi

When I registered the notification advised that you could commence building your schedule in August.

The catalog was expanded last night, and lots more sessions are visible. But I still don't see how to sign up yet.

Aren't those posted items from VMWorld 2007 and Europe 2008? I don't see anything posted for VMWorld 2008. Or I am looking at the incorrect spot?

you're in the right spot i think. they say in another posting from the vmware team that the Schedule Builder goes up in mid-August, so you have a couple weeks yet. The Catalog is up though...

The Content Catalog only has descriptions but no schedules of when the sessions are. Since I'm new to the VMWorld conference, is the schedule of times part of the schedule builder? I want to make sure that I don't miss out on the hands-on sessions.

Schedule Builder will be available in mid-August. An email will go to all registered attendees letting them know that it is time to build their schedules. Schedule Builder is a quick, easy way to plan your VMworld experience. It allows you to search sessions by topic, speakers, and other key parameters, so you can customize your VMworld experience to suit your specific needs and interests.

Is there an exact date on when the scheduler and classes will be available to schedule? I'd like to block off a chunk of time now and setup a reminder.

When I did it last year, the process took some time. The GUI was okay, but I'm hoping they improved it this go around. ~Jason

It looked like it was up. I went in and created my schedule. But now, I don't see a link or anything.

Anyone have the url to get back to the schedule builder?

Got the email today and I'm still throwing my schedule together...

Try this link, astueve.

I tried logging into the URL posted above and it keeps telling me invalid user and password. Did you get email confirmation with user id and password? I have not received anything yet.

I'm also having problems logging in. Why did some people already got the email and others did not?

I logged into the VMworld.com site first then open the builder and it will passthrough.

I can't get the scheduler builder, is it available yet? Or is it still mid-August?

Thanks

It looks like a select few are able to register early. This is a snippet from the invitation to schedule builder:

As a valued member of the VMware® community you can access Schedule Builder today —one full week before the general public! Log on now and start building your schedule. Schedule Builder lets you search sessions by topic, speakers, and other key parameters, so you can customize your VMworld® experience to suit your needs and interests.

It looks like the rest of us will have to wait until next week.

I've been checking the site twice a day since 1st August in eager anticipation. If JasonGeorge received the same mail (as the excerpt posted by Nick) on 7th August, I guess it'll be available to all on the 14th August (i.e. tomorrow). I'll check back 1st thing in the morning & keep checking all day as it beats working (someone remind though please as I'm going out for some practice beers this evening).... Last year it took me a while to book everything & it is a good idea to sort it sooner rather than later as the sessions can book up, although I have read somewhere that some of the more popular sessions will be repeated this year.

I wonder how you get to be one of the select few then. The company I work for has sent 2 or more people to the US based Vmworlds since 2005, sends attendees to user groups on a regular basis, has around 200 fully licenced 4 socket hosts (with full extended support subscriptions paid for etc), pays for a TAM too, yet we're not select enough:D Perhaps all those who had downloaded V3.5 U2 got the early registration option as a sweetner

I never received an email however I logged in yesterday to look at the catalog again and I was able to schedule my sessions. Not sure why I didn't receive an email. Hopefully this is not a tease and I go to login tomorrow and all my sessions are gone.
