Or what product is that lab all about otherwise?

Best regards

I am making the assumption that the lab is getting to play around with ESX 4.0. I am making that assumption since that lab is not offered on Monday.

So my guess would be that it will be announced in the General Session Tuesday morning. I have went ahead and signed up for that lab to work with the new product.

I hope that I am right.

Well, here is the abstract. Draw your own conclusions, but you are probably right:

The next generation virtual datacenter from VMware will encompass exciting new technologies that further extend the flexibility, efficiency and dynamism of IT environments. A preview of these new server, networking and storage related technologies, how they work and how they can be configured to deliver higher levels of availability, resource efficiency and simplified management in IT environments will be provided.

Well, then we are thinking the same way. I reacted to the name of the lab, a name or product I had no seen before. Cool to be one of the first in the world to get hands-on experience with ESX 4. I have enrolled for the first lab after the general session!

See you there!
