I recently came across a very interesting blog (http://www.vmworldunderground.com/profiles/blog/show?id=2147195%3ABlogPost%3A3481&page=1#comment-2147195_Comment_3521) that mentioned some very intriguing predictions for VMworld Europe 2009.

Among some of the points mentioned, I was particularly interested in Number 4 which mentions the possibility that StorMagic could have a major role to play in shaking up the traditional SAN market. And why not? With an easy and FREE way to turn your ESX server into a Shared Storage platform, the SAN industry is about to get a major shake up! After all, very few solutions allow users to build a cost effective Highly Available ESX environment from an ESX server they had to begin with!

With close to a 1000 downloads of it's SvSAN in the span of 1 week, StorMagic has clearly created a buzz by providing the market with a cost effective solution to their storage woes. And nothing speaks higher in this current market than a product that is absolutely FREE! Try it for yourself and see what all the buzz is about..
