The Intel Solutions Summit brings together Intel's top channel program members face to face with Intel Executives and other industry leaders. This is the single most important systems builder event in the industry. In this conference, attendees learn the latest technologies, strategies and solutions that will help drive revenue, provide a forum to network with peers to share best practices and build new relationships. VMware is actively recruiting system builders for the VMware System Builder and the first 50 new system builders to sign up for the program will receive an iDog.
